UNAPPRECIATED SANTA

INTERIOR - FAMILY ROOM - EVENING

GEORGE IS SITTING ON THE SOFA WATCHING TV. HE FLICKS THE TV REMOTE, CHANGING BETWEEN SEVERAL STATIONS WHEN BETH, HIS WIFE, ARRIVES CARRYING A SANTA CLAUS COSTUME.

BETH

Okay, honey, here's the costume. You'd better hurry or we'll be late.

GEORGE

I'm not going this year.

BETH

(taken back)

Excuse me? What do you mean you're not going? It's Christmas Eve and the church Christmas party is tonight.

GEORGE

So! I've decided to take it easy tonight. Maybe run out to Blockbusters and pick up a movie.

BETH

(in disbelief)

Well, who's going to be Santa Claus?

(defensive)

Well, no one at the church asked me.

BETH

You've been Santa for the last five years...

GEORGE

...AND

BETH

And, we all assumed...

GEORGE

You see, that's where people make mistakes. They assume too much.

BETH

Well, George, I mean, there's no one else who can be Santa at the church. You're fat...

GEORGE GIVES HER A HARD LOOK.

BETH (CONT'D)

I don't mean fat, I mean big and you have the voice for it.

GEORGE

There are a lot of men in the church that can be Santa.

BETH

Name one?

GEORGE PONDERES FOR A MOMENT.

GEORGE

Well maybe there's not another man, but there are a lot of big women with deep voices.

BETH

George, the children don't want a female Santa.

GEORGE

Look, every year I do this Santa routine, and what thanks do I get? No one even gives me a Christmas card.

They just shove their kid in line and go get a plate of food, and I'm left sitting on a hard chair, roasting in that Santa suit like a turkey in an oven.

BETH

But honey, think about the kids.

GEORGE

Beth, you ever listen to these kids? When we were little, we were glad just to get anything. These kids want expensive stuff and they want it at a certain time. One kid told me to drop off his gifts before nine o'clock so he could play with them before he went to bed.

BETH

George, you just tell them that you may run a little late, so you can't promise.

GEORGE

This other little boy wanted me to sign his Christmas list.

BETH

Oh that's cute. He wanted Santa's autograph.

GEORGE

Autograph! He told me it was a promissory note for his gifts.

BETH

George, you're blowing this whole thing out of proportion.

(pouting) GEORGE
Nobody appreciates Santa anymore.

BETH
Awe honey, don't talk like that.

GEORGE
It's true.

BETH
It's not.

(hurting) GEORGE
It is! They don't really love me. They love what they can get from me. Once they receive a gift, then they turn from me.

BETH
Sounds familiar, doesn't it?

GEORGE
What do you mean?

BETH
As sad as it is, many people treat Jesus the same way. They acknowledge him this time of year just for the gifts and presents they receive, but so many soon turn away and miss the true meaning of Christmas...
